Mr. Felix comes of ac old German family. His ancestors for many generations have been men of wealth and refinent. He personally had one of the finest collections of paintings in Cologne. Upon losing 180,000 at Monte Carlo he decided to sell his pictures, and completed negotiations for the sale of them to Senator Chark for his new Fifth avenue mansion. He still that these paintings and is only waiting for the word from Mr. Clark's agents to turn them over.

George Gordon Rattle, of Weeks & Battle, who was retained by the manufacturer to-day, said te an Evening Morld reporter after the prisoners had been remanded by Magtatrate Crane:

Was Robbed, Lawyer Says.

"We are going to make a determined effort to recover every cent that Mr. Felix lost to the Ludium and Freeman grambling-houses. I am free to say that he was fairly robbed in both those places. The game was not straight and he had no more show than he would have had among Italian bandite. He has kept his return checks, indorsed by Ludium and Freeman, and no better evidence is needed to bring the suif on. Mr. Ludium has effects that I think we can easily strach, so that if we never can get back the $50,000 lost in this wire-tapping swindle we will recover the fortune he dropped in the gambling hells.

"Mr. Felix has a phetographic memory. He went to the Rogues' Gellerv after telling his story to Commissioner McAdoo and picked out the pictures of these two prisoners and also the photology. But his ecstasy was short-lived, The sad news transpired that a mistake had been made in the jockey's colors. The $5,000 had gone by the board. Still dazed by the news, Mr. Felix watched the supposed brokers melt away. They had all vanished when he recovered his senses and zaw that he had been buncoed. Then he went to Commissioner McAdoo and told his story. He was on the verge of nervous prostration and declared that he intended to kill himself.

Though two of the alleged bunco men are in custody, experience has taught the police that it is very difficult to convict men who work the wiretapping scheme shrewdly. The victim is guilty of a wrong intent, and is, therefore, not a legal witness.

WEDNESDAY, Feb The speculative pool in Interborough there was a very noticeable falling off in the supply of yarns about a "Metro-politan merger." "a general amalgama-tion of all the traction lines in Greater New York." &c. As a matter of fact there has never been anything in this movement in Interborough except inanipulation pure and simple. The great majority of the stock is held by the Beimont syndicate, behind which, of holdings were 230,000 shares out of a total of 200,000. There are perhaps 30,000 or 40,000 shares in the market, the balvery easy matter, therefore, for the speculative pool to manipulate the stock, particularly as the syndicate exand sell at 300. The syndicate has not sold a single share of its holdings on the rise, and perhaps bought a few crossed 150. At these prices, however, it is inclined to follow the example of has to some extent upset the calculations of the international bankers, who have been engaged all winter in the somewhat unpatriotic, but at this time very profitable, occupation of depleting Uncle Sam's gold supply. Having exhausted all the gold bars in New York they have now begun to denude the Philadelphia Mint of its supply, held for coinage purposes. No less than $5,000,000 was brought over from the Sleepy City during the week. Now the exchange market, having taken one of those mysterious turns which the late Charles Schumacher was of all the Wall street experts alone able to describe and ex-plain intelligently in the English language, several of the engagements have been cancelled. Louis Pra, kitchen-man in the Fifth Avenue Hotel, was stabbed in the breast to-day by Emanuel Lupis a former friend of his. The stabbing took place on Twenty-fourth street, near Broadway, and, with the knife still in him, Pra ran into the Fifth Avenue Hotel and there fell unconscious to the floor. He was removed to the hospital, where it is said he will die. Lupis married Carrie Ryan, a young woman who used to board with Pra's sister, some time ago. The girl left him afterward and Lupis got the idea that Pra had lured her away. Pra hardly knew the girl. Lupis laid in wait for Pra to-day and succeeded in stabbing him after chasing him for two blocks. Lupis has not been captured.
